Patman Bill Is Endorsed By the Ulster-Greene Taxpayers' Council

Herbert Sears of Marlborough Leads Argument and Meeting Carries Motion to Notify Wagner, Goodwin, Copeland.

WROTE ROOSEVELT

Marlborough Supervisor Sent Letter to President Requesting That He Sign Bonus Measure.

At the meeting of the Ulster-Greene taxpayers' council in the Stuyvesant Hotel, attended by about 75 members, Friday night, the Patman bill for the payment of the soldiers' bonus, which soon will be given to President Roosevelt after having passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, was the subject of discussion.

Leading the argument in favor of the bill was Herbert Sears, newly appointed supervisor of the town of Marlborough, and secretary-treasurer of the Taxpayers' Association. Until last night, Leon Hill, president of the Rosendale Taxpayers' Association, gave him the chief opposition. Sliding in with Hill was Arthur Richards, president of the New Paltz Association.

Discussion on the Patman bill came up after routine business matters had been settled. Secretary Sears in reading the minutes of the previous meeting read of action by the council which directed him to communicate with Senator Wagner, Congressman Philip Goodwin and Senator R. S. Copeland.

The letter written by Mr. Sears said in part: "We strongly urge you to vote favorably on the Patman bill and we will support at the next election candidates favorable to the payment of the bonus."

Expansion of currency, said Mr. Sears in explaining his views on the Patman bill and recovery, is the only thing that will bring prosperity back. "To my mind," he said, "the expansion of our currency is the only thing that will bring back recovery. Farming is our basic industry and as a farmer I know what farmers are up against, selling what they produce for less than it cost them. This is why so many properties are being foreclosed. People don't understand how more money will help the country. Today we have the biggest gold reserve in our history, and the greatest in proportion to our issued currency. Today we have $1 in gold for every 50 cents of currency whereas we could have $2.50 in currency for each dollar in gold which we hold in our treasury. The only thing to do is to issue $2.50 for each dollar we hold in gold. The Patman bill specifies the issuance of some two billion currency rather than go to banks and borrow and pay back with interest. This extra currency immediately goes into the life-blood of the nation."

The idea is all right in theory, said Leon Hill of Rosendale, but would not work out in practice he thought. He expressed the opinion that the way to recovery is through jobs, not money. "Wealth must be created before it can be representative of value" was his idea.

John O'Brien of Saugerties asked Mr. Hill about passing the Patman bill over the President's veto and wanted to know whether it would be a wise thing to do. O'Brien said he felt certain the bonus would be paid.

President Jay Terry of the Kingston Taxpayers' Association was of the opinion that it would be inconsistent for the group to go on record for spending two billion dollars after opposing the spending of more money. He said that taxes must be paid on all money loaned and bills contracted.

Robert Browning of Woodstock, an ex-serviceman and prominent member of veterans' organizations, having once headed the Ulster County American Legion, gave his views on the bonus. "There are a lot of veterans on relief and if they get the money they will go off relief," he said.

The burden of today in taxes and in prices would be increased by inflation, Mr. Lewis of Rosendale thought. "More money isn't going to start factories and regain industries," he said.

President George J. Mutari called for a vote on the question of recommending congress to overrule the probable presidential veto and the result was 15 in favor and nine in opposition. Some did not vote.

23 Officers Succeeded

New Banking House To Be Erected in New Paltz

The old frame building which has housed the Huguenot National Bank at New Paltz since before the Civil War, has been razed to make room for the new banking house which will be erected on the site of the old building. This work of demolishing the old building has been completed and soon the new structure will begin to go up. Work on the new banking house will be completed before cold weather.

While the new building is being erected the bank is occupying temporary quarters in the Pappas building at the corner of Main and West Chestnut streets.

The new building which will house the bank will be a one-story structure with a dome type roof and will be built of Shawangunk conglomerate or what is locally known as Shawangunk grit. A section of stone used largely in this section of the county. The stone will be the same as used in the structure of the gate house leading to Lake Mohawk, and which has attracted wide attention.

New and modern type of vaults will be constructed in the new bank, of which Frank A. LeFever is president, and when completed the village of New Paltz will have one of the most efficient and artistic banking houses in the county.

Gross Charged Today With Homicide in Deaths of 5 of Family

New York, May 11 (AP)—Frederick Gross, 49-year-old bookkeeper, was charged with homicide today in connection with the poison deaths of his wife and four children.

Gross was arraigned in a Brooklyn police court after he had undergone an all night questioning which, police said, had failed to shake him in his denial that he had used a rare poison to take the lives of his wife, Katharine, 36, and the children, Frederick, 9, Katharine, 7, Leo, 3, and Barbara, 18 months.

Evidence allegedly obtained by a toxicologist using a spectograph on tissue taken from the bodies of the mother and the son, Leon, caused District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan to order the placing of a homicide charge against the prisoner.

Investigators said Gross, a 320-lb. bookkeeper for an importing firm, had access to stock of poison intended for killing rodents. Because it had been used so rarely in taking human life, they said, medical knowledge of its effect on the human body is limited.

The prisoner, wearer of an artificial leg the result of an accident in Philadelphia in 1925, had only the nourishment of half a sandwich and a cup of coffee during the grilling which had entered its second day.

Investigators said the deaths resulted from poison taken in food. Gross's mother-in-law, Mrs. Olga Dein, in a Brooklyn Hospital suffering from symptoms of poisoning, professed her belief in the bookkeeper's innocence early today when authorities brought the man to the hospital. They had planned to confront Gross with his mother-in-law, but changed their plans when she declared she thought he was innocent.

"He couldn't have done it," she said. "He thought too much of them all."

Gross said his mother-in-law had told of seeing a white, sparkling substance in some cocoa that Gross had purchased from the firm employing him. Gross, according to Kurt Welver, vice president of the cocoa, had said he believed his wife's death had been caused by the cocoa.

A chemical test of the cocoa showed it to be non-poisonous, Welver said.

The first of the bookkeeper's family to die was his eldest child, Frederick. That was late in March, the other deaths—Leo, Mrs. Gross, Katharine and Barbara—followed, all attributed to natural causes. A fifth child, Frank, 5, is in of check-up, according to doctors.

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Senator Long (D-La.) said in a statement today that virtually all the Democratic leaders want to "go ahead and pay the bonus by passing the Patman bill."

"The outburst of Jesse Jones and the admission of Marriner Eccles favoring the bonus is what all the balance of the leaders are doing behind the scenes," he added.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt left for a fishing trip in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Maryland, taking with him Vice President Garner, Speaker Byrns, Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, and Senator Harrison, chairman of the finance committee.

If he decided to prepare a veto message on the Patman bill—already passed by the Senate and House—he would have ample advice from these congressional leaders.

Long referred to a speech last night by Chairman Jones of the Reconstruction Corporation, indicating a belief that immediate bonus payment might be a good thing. Surprise was expressed at the White House.

Eccles Admission
Eccles, governor of the federal reserve board, testified yesterday to a senate committee that the Patman bill in itself would create no inflation except that derived from a "fear psychology" that would cause a rapid velocity of funds.

"While I have not talked to all the leaders," Long added, "many of them I feel I have talked with in confidence and I see as Jesse Jones feels about the matter."

"Jones has some independence about him, and evidently doesn't want to be a party to leading the Democrats to slaughter."

"You know he once paid the Democratic party out of debt. All down the line the Democrats are practically universal for this bonus to go on through now."

It was indicated at the executive mansion that the reconstruction corporation head spoke on his own responsibility.

Jones's Speech
Jones, speaking to a bankers' meeting at Pinehurst, N. C., said he could "not become excited" about the prospect of immediate payment. The capital studied with interest the portion of the speech in which Jones said:

"The few billions that the government has expended in relief measures including the new $4,880,000,000 public works and relief authorization will not be an unbearable burden, nor even the two billion additional that it seems likely that Congress may add in payment of the adjusted service certificates to the veterans."

"It appears entirely possible that Congress may override a presidential veto of this measure. But after all, we voluntarily assumed the debt 10 years ago and paying it now is merely anticipating by years something that must at all events be paid. True, if the full amount of the bill is authorized, it will be anticipating a payment without reduction of unearned interest. I am not sure but that it will be worth this extra cost to get this issue settled and out of politics."

Lighted Match in Empty Mass Plane Maneuvers Tar Barrel Caused Blast Kept a Dark Secret By And Youth is in Hospital Honolulu Naval Officials

Charles White, 12, of Shandaken, Seriously Injured by Flying Metal; Companion Gave Alarm to Ward Hummel.

FIRE FOLLOWED

Fortunately for Lad, Explosion Had Thrown Him Beyond Reach of the Flames.

Charles White, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy White of Shandaken, is in a serious condition at the Kingston Hospital as a result of the exploding of a tar barrel into which he dropped a lighted match Friday while on his way from school. He is under the care of Dr. D. S. Meyers.

Young White and a playmate were walking along the highway when they came on a steel barrel from which road repair oil had been taken. The barrel had been left along the highway and the two youths speculated as to what might happen if they dropped a match in it. The White lad tried it and there followed an explosion which hurled the lad some distance away and inflicted severe injuries. The other lad ran to Ward Hummel's garage and gave notice of the accident and Mr. Hummel conveyed the injured lad to the office of Dr. Quinn at Phoenixia where after preliminary care the lad was rushed to the Kingston Hospital where it was found he was suffering from a fracture of the right arm, a broken nose and severe lacerations about the face, a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

The boy's mother was notified of the accident and was brought to the hospital by Burroughs Blakesley, teacher at the Shandaken school. Following the explosion the barrel took fire but the unconscious lad had been thrown by the explosion beyond reach of the flames.

Duke Cools in Jail

London, May 11 (AP)—The Duke of Manchester, clad in drab prison garb instead of the double-breasted grey suit he wore in court yesterday when he was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment for fraud, cooled his heels today in a South London jail while his lawyers attempted to secure his release pending appeal. The portly duke, who was found guilty of obtaining £650 ($2,250) through pawning jewels belonging to the estate of his late American-born mother, breakfasted on the usual prison fare of bread, margarine and tea. He was housed in the prison hospital because of a bad heart.

NOT EVEN A HINT

Flying Armada Believed to be Carrying Out Maneuvers Without a Hitch.

Honolulu, May 11 (AP)—Hints of even more amazing aerial operations came from high naval sources today while the navy's great armada of 46 seaplanes continued its unprecedented secret maneuvers somewhere in the Pacific west of Hawaii.

Reports were that 450 aircraft would take part, but amplification was not forthcoming here, nor would naval officials at Washington comment.

The aircraft are aboard surface vessels of the fleet now maneuvering under simulated wartime conditions in a great triangular area in the Pacific bounded by the Aleutian Islands on the north, the western seaboard of the United States on the east and Hawaii on the south.

Sketchy preliminary announcements concerning the maneuvers indicated that planes aboard three huge carriers would figure conspicuously in the war games.

So effective, meanwhile, was a censorship clamped down upon the movement of the 46-plane patrol, that Honolulu was without even a hint as to its whereabouts, although navy officials said frankly they knew what the planes were doing.

It was pointed out that the aircraft were of utmost importance to the present activities of the fleet and that to acquaint a mythical enemy with their operations would destroy their effectiveness.

It was assumed that the flying armada was carrying out its mission without a hitch.

The planes soared away from Pearl Harbor early Thursday, but whether all had come to Midway Island, 1,325 miles westward, as it was supposed they would do, or whether some had stopped at "Tory Coral atoll en route was unknown. Officials tended to minimize the unusualness of the flight, explaining that mass non-stop flights had been made to Midway several times before.

It seemed highly probable that should gigantic display of the navy's aerial strength be contemplated at sea it would await the presence with the fleet of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt. The cruiser Houston slipped unannounced into San Diego, Calif., harbor yesterday to await his arrival, expected May 16. Then the cruiser, with the secretary's flag flying from her main truck, will move out to sea again to a position on a hypothetical battle line with the fleet.

"Child's play" was the vague phrase used by one Washington official in what was assumed to be a comparison of the present flight with the one believed contemplated.

Naval officers here are emphatic that the war games are serious business designed to train the navy for battle. In fact, most naval strategy is based on an analysis of these annual tactical exercises.

How serious the simulated warfare has been felt by several officers during the last few days by superior officers for inadvertent admissions concerning operations of ships and planes which became public.

The radios of all ships are tuned to catch any information of the opposing side, hence the slightest leak might well be turned to the advantage of one side or the other.

High School Survey To Be Started Next Week

Superintendent B. C. Van Ingen of the city school system stated this morning that he had decided not to wait for the approval of a work relief project for a junior high school survey in Kingston, but planned to start the work of making the survey next week through the city schools. He said he had not fully matured his plans, but they were about in shape to start the survey required.

The local emergency relief bureau had submitted a project for a junior high school survey to the State TERA, and had received word that for a project of that kind it was necessary to obtain approval from Washington.

Superintendent Van Ingen stated that he believed that in submitting the project to Washington that there might develop some delay in having the project approved, and he was anxious to have the work completed as quickly as possible.

For that reason he this morning asked the ERLB to withdraw the proposed project, which was done.

The project that was submitted called for a survey of the city to obtain the names and number of children of school age; those in the elementary grades, those in the junior high school grade and those in the senior grade.

Newburgh Council Will Be Asked to Buy Old Armory Property

Newburgh's Chamber of Commerce has added its weight of influence to the growing movement to persuade the city council to buy the Broadway armory from its new owner, Edward H. Remmert, Kingston banker, according to the Newburgh News. The Recreation Commission of Newburgh has already petitioned the council to buy the building for use as a recreation center and civic auditorium, and the Newburgh Food Merchants' Association is expected to take similar action.

Mr. Remmert has already offered to sell the building to the city of Newburgh for the same price that he paid for it, $35,000.

Newburgh's council meets Monday evening when it is expected that some action will be taken. If the council fails to act favorably there is some discussion of a plan to buy the armory through a big public subscription.

Moodlums Riot

St. Johns, Nfld., May 11 (AP)—Rioting hoodlums, driven to cover by the batons of 200 reserve policemen, today left in their wake two-score broken, looted store fronts and a badly crippled light and power system. It was impossible to estimate immediately the damage wrought by the crowd of more than 200 jobless who scoured through the city's main thoroughfares last night. Scores were believed injured as police used their batons freely in their battle to clear the streets.

14 Pistols Missing

Manila, P. I., May 11 (AP)—Disappearance of 14 service pistols from the U. S. A thousand navy yard employees dropped their work yesterday and made a vain search for the pistols. It was feared they might have found their way into the hands of the Sakdalistas whose May 2 uprising cost 60 lives.

Jury in Negligence Case Returns Verdict Of No Cause of Action

A verdict of no cause of action was returned Friday afternoon in both actions involving the death of two Samosville youths on April 17, 1934, when a Chevrolet car driven by Mrs. Lester Wynkoop struck a bicycle on which Albert Srennevik and H. Burton Kelder were riding to school. The actions were brought by the mothers of the two lads against Mr. Wynkoop owner of the Chevrolet and Mrs. Wynkoop who was driving on her way to The Vly school where she taught school.

After summation by counsel and the charge by Justice Schrick the question was submitted to the jury and after being out less than two hours the verdicts were rendered.

According to the testimony the two lads were coming down the hill from the direction of Krumville and about to enter upon the macadam road leading to Samosville on their way to school. Mrs. Wynkoop testified that she saw the lads coming toward her from a distance of 275 feet before the accident. They were riding on their left and when about 10 feet away swerved to gain their right side of the road. Her car was swerved to the ditch to avoid an accident and she testified she struck a log on the right hand side of the ditch but was unable to avoid the two. They struck her car on the left front. The plaintiffs testified that after the accident the windshield on the Wynkoop car was dirty and Mrs. Wynkoop after the accident said she had been adjusting the throttle of her car and had not seen the boys until the car struck something.

Mrs. Wynkoop denied any such statement and said she saw the lads and tried to avoid them and that had they stayed on their left side of the road as she first observed them there was room for them to pass but they swerved to their right too late to make the change. Whether the Srennevik lad was on the rear luggage carrier or on the front of the cycle riding on the handlebars was one of the points in question.

H. Burton Kelder died immediately of a fractured skull and the Srennevik lad died in the Benedictine Hospital the following day after an operation had been performed in a vain effort to save his life. He too died from a fracture of the skull. LeRoy Lounsbury appeared for the defendants who lived at Lehigh and Chris J. Flanagan and William Kaercher appeared for the plaintiffs.

Franklin's Stove Among Early Similar Devices

Benjamin Franklin invented a stove in 1745. Previous to that time there had been stoves in Holland and Germany. Franklin's, however, was a great improvement over all which had preceded it.

In 1771 he invented several other stoves, one for burning bituminous coal, which would consume its own smoke and had a downward draft; and another, intended for the same purpose, having a basket grate or cage, with movable bars at the top and bottom, supported by pivots at the center, and which, after being filled and kindled at the top, could be inverted and so made to burn at the base.

The next important inventor of stoves, ovens and heating and cooking apparatus was the American-born but Europeanized adventurer and scientist, Count Rumford, who between 1785 and 1795 devised several improvements intended to economize fuel and heat. Rumford's stoves for cooking purposes were lined with firebrick or soapstone and had a ventilating oven. They were introduced into America from Germany about 1798, and soon extended in popularity. Domestic products appeared in competition with them, and so the American stove industry was established. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Cyclone, Tornado Differ;

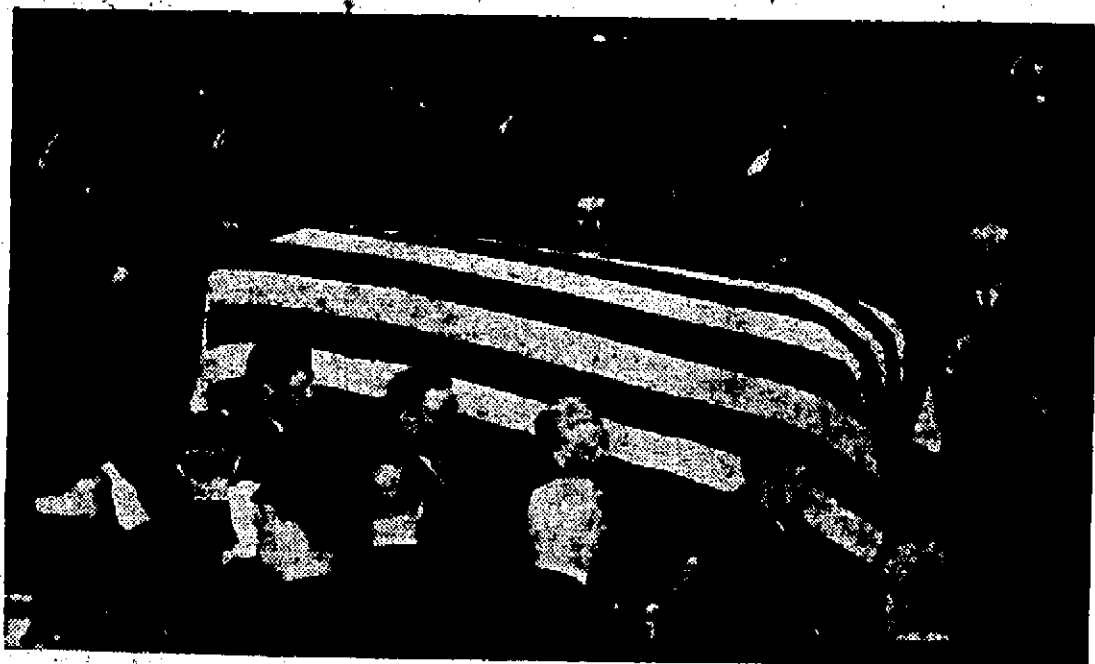

Hurricane, Typhoon, Same

A cyclone, explains a writer in the Indianapolis News, is a storm of system of winds, often violent in the tropics and moderate elsewhere, with abundant precipitation and usually a diameter of 50 to 100 miles. It moves with a velocity of 20 to 30 miles an hour and is characterized by winds rotating, often at the rate of 30 to 120 miles an hour, clockwise in the southern hemisphere, counter-clockwise in the northern, about a calm center of low atmospheric pressure. It is also called hurricane in the West Indies and typhoon or baguio in the Philippine Islands and the China sea. A tornado is a whirling wind accompanied by a funnel-shaped cloud, very violent and destructive and advancing in a narrow path often for many miles over the land. It occurs in many parts of the world, but most frequently in the central Mississippi valley. The wind is too violent to be measured, and the barometric pressure falls so rapidly (though rarely more than one-tenth of its normal value) that wooden structures are often lifted and burst open by the air confined within them.

CUTTING, AIR CRASH VICTIM, BURIED

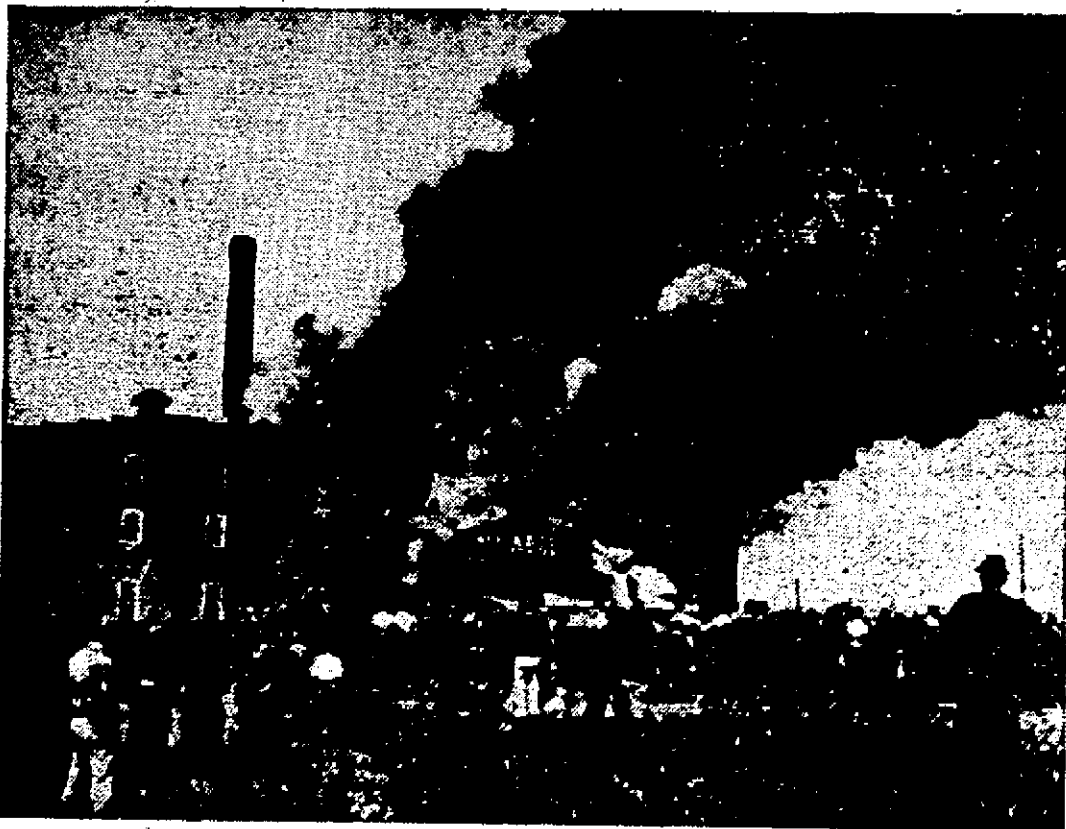

The flag-wrapped casket carrying the body of Sen. Bronson M. Cutting, killed in an airplane crash, is shown as it was borne into St. James' Protestant Episcopal church in New York for funeral services. Among distinguished persons attending the funeral were J. P. Morgan and Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, shown at left. Senator Cutting was a liberal republican, representing New Mexico in the senate, although he was born in New York. CHAIN LETTER 'FACTORIES' TURN CITY MONEY-MAD

Chain letter "factories," one of which is shown above, turned Springfield, Mo., into a money-mad mad-ness, as society women, waitresses, clerks and taxi drivers jammed the streets in a wild bargain-counter rush of the chain headquarters. (Associated Press Photo)

FIRE DESTROYS PHILADELPHIA CHEMICAL PLANT

Fed by huge vats of inflammable oil, a fire and explosion wrecked the three-building March and Company chemical plant in South Philadelphia, at a loss of between $75,000 and $100,000. The spectacular blaze is shown at its height. (Associated Press Photo)

Sudden Spot in Mexico

The sudden spot in Mexico is the Hill of Bells in the old colonial city of Queretaro, where the Mexican independence movement was born. Its one monument, a crude stone chapel, commemorates the death of one captain, and the fall of another. On the ground now covered by the chapel, Maximilian I of Mexico, and his two sons, Maximilian and Maria, faced the firing squad, and a volley of bullets sounded the last salvo for the empire. It is a sad day, from Spain, Emperor of Austria-Hungary, built the chapel above the spot where his brother died. It was intended that the Emperor's corpse would pass beneath the chapel as he went to a funeral in the city. The World War intervened. Neglected by Austria, the chapel was destroyed by vandals. Within three months soldiers built the chapel of the Mexican empire; an altar stripped of its hangings in a few minutes to the face of Franz Josef.

Out of Fighting Class

The American Kennel club dog book declares that the Kerry Blue terrier is no longer bred to be a fighting dog. The breed is listed as useful for herding sheep, exterminating vermin and retrieving game. In addition to being trusted guards and companions. The standard for the breed accords the color of the coat a plum blue being preferable, and the soft, plentiful long curls that make the dog outstanding in appearance. His head is strong and well balanced, showing plenty of hair, nose black, and ears set low and well carried. The eyes are dark or hazel, medium in size, set low, well placed. A deep breast, straight legs, medium length back, well placed, gaily carried tail are other points to look for. The dog stands 20 inches or more at the shoulders and weighs 25 to 37 pounds.

A Columbia professor says 95 per cent of the people in New York should live somewhere else. It would be good for them, but they wouldn't like it.

A geological mystery came into the hands of Major D. W. Colbourn, superintendent of the New Jersey Park in the discovery, among beautiful scenery of the Palisades Interstate down on the slope of the Palisades, about 100 feet above the Hudson river at Alpine, N. J., of a section of a petrified log. The specimen, which appears to be part of a petrified hardwood tree, perhaps an oak, is about 18 inches in diameter and about 12 inches high. The original wood has turned into quartz.

Persons seeking publicity should spend Sunday passing out cards on hills and curves. There is no other way to get one's name in the New York country list.

Cord of Thanks

We wish to thank all our relatives and friends who were so kind and sympathetic to our recent bereavement in loss of our beloved and father, also for the beautiful floral tributes and spiritual messages in form of New cards.

Canoe Talk in the Dark
Language for the present-day savage, as for his distant predecessor, consists of many gestures, grimaces and a few elementary word sounds. Even today, the African bushman utilizes sign language to such an extent that he is practically unintelligible in the dark to his fellow tribesmen. The Bubes of the island of Fernando Po are unable to speak to one another after twilight. The Funs of West Africa utilize an expression which says, "Let us go to the fire to talk it over," when darkness appears.—Jacob H. Conn in the Forum and Century.

Elephants Have Cushion-Foot
A full-grown elephant weighs anything up to six tons, yet it can be as light on its feet as a dancer. When a herd goes to a drinking-hole a messenger goes silently ahead to see if all is clear. Danger is at once signalled by a loud trumpeting. The reason why elephants are so soft-moving is because each foot ends in what is really a big cushion—a large pad consisting of a mass of fat and fibers. —Pearson's Weekly.

Wends Hold Fast
Just 60 miles from Berlin, at Vetschau, live one of the most curious folk of all Europe, a small colony of Wends who still speak the language of their ancestors rather than German and wear the costumes of centuries ago. On Sundays the women dress in elaborate headdresses, an enormous lace apron over their skirts, and ride solemnly off to church on their bicycles. Village lanes are also good boatmen, propelling the flat-bottomed punts of the country expertly along canals.

Admiral Byrd Busy on Scientific-Writings

Washington, May 11 (AP)—In the after-glow of a brilliant welcoming fete, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd attacked the task of writing his scientific findings today while the men who spent two years in Antarctica with him began to scatter toward their homes.

The admiral, as President Roosevelt said in his speech of greetings late yesterday, had reports to make on "valuable information" which the expedition added to "at least 22 separate sciences."

After spending the night with his family at the White House as official guests of the nation, the slender explorer, whose hair has been turned somewhat gray by the rigors of the waste lands, was up early to confer with Secretary Swanson and scientific authorities.

At a dinner last night at which Byrd received from the National Geographic Society a scroll recounting his achievements in mapping the frigid fastnesses of the world's far corners, the explorer spoke of some of the data he brought back from his second trip to Little America. He said:

That the ice age was at its peak at the South Pole, with the ice varying from two feet to two miles thick. That the explorers had discovered and claimed for the United States Marie Byrd Land, an area as large as the Eastern Seaboard states from Maine to Georgia.

That an area of 250,000 square miles, hitherto listed as unknown, had been found to be part of the Pacific Ocean.

That Antarctica is all one continent, as large as the United States, Mexico and part of Canada combined.

That, among other data the expedition brought back information on cosmic rays, weather and astronomy.

More than 1,000,000 of the sick poor Chinese of Shanghai received free medical attention at the dispensaries conducted by the Catholic Church there, during the past year.

Events Around The Empire State

Liberty, N. Y., May 11 (AP)—The late Lydia B. Adams, 75, overlooked all her neighbors—in fact everybody in Liberty—in her will, declaring they were not sufficiently interested in her while alive.

The document, admitted to probate yesterday in Sullivan county surrogate's court, read in part:

"It is my desire that no notice of my death be mailed to anyone, and that no one in Liberty be notified of my death as the people of Liberty were not sufficiently interested in me while I was alive to receive such notice."

Troy, N. Y., May 11 (AP)—David Biekerdewitz, 23, of Brooklyn, was fatally injured yesterday when a truck he was driving collided with another on a highway near this city.

The driver of the second truck was Claude Scheller of Troy, who told Under-sheriff Morris Buisson, Biekerdewitz approached him at a high rate of speed and in a reckless manner. Scheller was not held.

Erle, Pa., May 11 (AP)—The Rev. Fletcher Hansen, Jamestown, N. Y., was re-elected president of the New York Conference, Augustana Synod of the Lutheran Church here yesterday. Others elected: Vice president, the Rev. Gordon Olson, Brooklyn; secretary, the Rev. Ewald B. Lanson, White Plains, N. Y.; treasurer, Karl J. Olson, East Orange, N. J.

Utica, N. Y., May 11 (AP)—Prof. Heinrich Ries, Cornell University, department of geology, is the new president of the New York State Geological Association. He succeeds Prof. Nelson C. Dale, Hamilton College.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 11 (AP)—For two years Probation Officer John F. Lillis searched high and low for Patrick Allen, 40. Then he found him yesterday appearing as a witness in county court. Allen is in jail today with a probation violation charge against him.

Light an Old Gold

for young ideal

IN THE SPRING, so the poets say, a young man's fancy lightly turns to things romantic. But the Old Gold smoker doesn't depend on Spring for young ideas. He finds an Old Gold does its bit, at any time, in making a fellow feel at "tops" with the world. That's due to Old Gold's exceptionally mild and fine old tobacco; the finest nature grows.

Boy Friend—When we reach that curve in the road I'm going to kiss you.
Girl—Isn't that going too far, George?

A woman driver defines a local man in a person who thinks everybody else on the road is wrong.

Americanism—Telling the little fellow he has equality before the law; allowing big shots to speed through traffic with police escort.

The Salesman—You can't find a better car than this for the money. I'll let you have it for $350 as it stands.

Mr. Spavin—I'll give you $300 for it if you'll throw in a hitching weight and a whip.

Huey may be right. If Ford had been stopped when he got ten million cars would be scarce and easy to dodge.

Sheza Moran says her boy friends often run out of gas but never out of oil.

The American Tragedy—Drives until 2 a. m. to avoid stopping at a hotel; stops at a hospital.

Friend Wife—Mercy! What has happened to you? Your clothes are torn, and you're all smeared with mud and then more mud.

The Husband—I had words with the officer on the corner and he cleaned me up.

A typical American is one who drives like fury to reach a place where he will have nothing to do when he gets there.

When a woman puts out her hand, you don't know which way she is going to turn; anyone than you know when a husband will turn in, when he starts staying out.

Mrs. Quizzer—I see your friend, Mr. Singleton, is here. He was the best man at your wedding, was he not?

Mr. Whizzer—No, he was merely the luckiest.

The state highway patrol is cracking down on drunken and reckless drivers. Their work along this line, and the checking of cars going on night after night, is going to make driving a great deal safer for the rest of us. It's got so you can hardly drive out without meeting a fool.

Old Man—You love my daughter? Youth (passionately)—Love, her! Why, I would die for her! For one glance from those soft, sweet eyes, I would burst myself from yonder cliff and perish I could.

Old Man (shaking his head)—Hold on, my boy. It's something of a liar myself, and I think one is enough for a small family like mine.

There's never a rose in all the world but makes some green spray sweeter.

There's never a wind in all the sky but makes some bird-wing feather.

There's never a star but brings to heaven some silver radiance tender.

And never a rosy cloud but helps to crown the sunset splendor.

No robin but may thrill some heart, his dream-like gladness voicing—God gives us all some small sweet way, to set the world rejoicing.

Somehow we can't weep for those who groan about high taxes and then cheerfully drop a few grand on the ponies.

Bill—You should have seen Paulina's face light up.

Hermie—Did you touch off the powder?

Even if some people don't know, they just keep right on talking.

What the Directors And Others Do for The Local Y. W. C. A.

Just recently those who are most interested in the Young Women's Christian Association either as members, parents and friends or contributors, have had ample opportunity to see what is being done by groups of members at the Y. W. as culminations of daily or weekly activities. The Business and Professional Girls' Club recently entertained the Business and Professional Girls' Clubs of out of town Y. W.'s at a convention that was noteworthy for its smoothness, efficiency, enjoyability and general worthwhileness. While the most of the work for this convention was done by these busy young ladies either at the Y. W. or in their homes in preparation, the women on the Board of Directors were busy at their homes and at the Y. W. personally helping the girls and acting as hostesses for an affair that brought some 150 live-wire and fine characterized young women to our city.

Last week Saturday, an entertainment that is still a matter of wonder and the highest praise was given at the Municipal Auditorium by some three-hundred and more children, costumed cleverly, drilled admirably, assembled and put through an intricate program with entire smoothness. Many have asked, "How was it ever done?" By hours upon hours of hard but willing work on the part of Mrs. A. Noble Graham, director of the Girl Reserves, who with Mrs. Leonard Flicker and Mrs. Arthur Wicks, (other directors), Mrs. Herbert Brown and Mrs. Monell, spent literally days in the cutting out of those 300 costumes, and with the additional aid of Mrs. Luther, Mrs. Estey, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Edging, and mothers of many of the children, doing the sewing, thus completing the big task.

This gives an idea of what the women interested in the Y. W. on the Board of Directors and their friends do for the Y. W. for big occasions. But every day, some days all day, and in the evening, the women are at the Y. W. giving of their time and service in countless ways.

The fact that the girls of Kingston from "Blue Birds" to "Young Married Women," want the Y. W. C. A. and are willing to work and work hard and spend time for their loved Y. W. is one great reason for its success. But a very large additional reason for the success of this organization in our community is due to the constant, wise, sympathetic, capable and systematic constant aid of the officers, the Board of Directors, committee members, and women who have no official connection with the Y. W., but who appreciate its value.

A Freeman reporter was given the following list of the women in the community who are so actively engaged in constantly helping at the Y. W. and even so this does not include the groups of women from the different churches who serve the weekly Business Girls' Club suppers or other suppers. All of which speaks for itself.

Officers, Y. W. Board of Directors
President—Mrs. G. N. Wood.
Vice president—Mrs. Frederic Holcomb.
Recording secretary—Miss Beatrice Fowler.
Corresponding secretary—Miss Emily D. B. Hoyerst.
Treasurer—Mrs. John W. Matthews.

Committee Chairmen of Broad Finance—Mrs. Frederic Holcomb.
Girl Reserve—Mrs. A. Noble Graham (also on finance committee).
Miss Katherine Millard.

Industrial department—Miss Katherine Millard.
Membership—Mrs. John W. Matthews (assistant chairman, Mrs. Myron Teller).
House—Mrs. William Kingman.
Education—Mrs. Cornelius Treadwell.

Hospitality—Mrs. Frank Eastman.
Mrs. David Terry.
Suppers—Mrs. Charles Terwilliger.

Other board members and committees on which they serve:
Industrial committee—Miss Annie K. Fuller, Mrs. M. Donald Lane, Mrs. Arthur Wicks.
Mrs. Leonard Flicker—Girl Reserve committee and Young Married Women's Club.

Mrs. Charles L. Arnold—House committee and Young Married Women's Club.
Mrs. Raymond Rignall—Kingston Choralists and Girl Reserve.
Mrs. Howard Lewis—Education committee.

Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler—Finance committee.
Miss Elsie Phillips—Business Girls' Club.
Mrs. Alva Staples—Finance committee.
Mrs. Robin Stelle—House committee.

In addition to the members of the board who are active, there are more than 200 different girls and women of the city who assist in the work, acting as club advisers in the girl reserve department, as members of the membership committee, as solicitors in the annual budget campaign, and helping in the promotion of many social and educational activities of the Y. W. C. A.

The nation-wide use of the screen as an educational medium in which current motion pictures will speed the teaching of history, English, social science and other subjects to high school students throughout the country is announced by Ernest D. Lewis, president of the Department of Secondary Education of the National Education Association.

Fashions and Household Hints for Women

Summer Frocks for Looking Cool Anywhere and Any Time

By BARBARA BELL.

However attractive your plans for the summer, you are certain to run into sticky days—already things are beginning to "hot up" a bit! So, while you have nice cool breezes to stimulate you to action, better get out the scissors and needles and pins, thereby saving yourself a lot of discomfort when the mercury starts soaring in earnest.

If you're spending the summer in town, consider your clothes with special care. It's an art to look fresh in a wilting city! And the art lies as much in knowing what not to choose as in being sure of what fashions to favor.

On the negative side—don't pick fuzzy frocks. They will look as hot as they feel. Leave white and pastels for the country, or prepare to spend huge sums on cleansers' bills. Avoid fabrics that muss easily; wrinkles are never becoming, and hours over a pressing board take the freedom out of a carefree summer. Don't wear trailing chiffons to the office, or a sleeveless sports frock on the street; there are suitable clothes that are equally cool.

On the credit side, fashion has much that's exciting to offer. Simple styles with a formal town look, important new fabrics and refreshing colors combine to create chic for the busy urbanite.

First on the list is an amazing new wool, light as a feather. Interesting as to weave, and remarkably cool. Like most wools, it's beautifully resistant to wrinkles, and it drapes like a supple sheer.

Second, are fabrics with sufficient surface interest to help conceal wrinkles. Prints are marvelous in this respect, particularly the tiny all-over patterns, the closely spaced dot or diamond designs, and the scroily Persian types. In silks, the pebbly and crinkly weaves and the rustic shantung varieties have a nice uncrushable quality. Peasant linens, silk linens, corded weaves and blistered cottons will hang out their wrinkles between wearings. As to the sheers, the fine nets are smart over taffeta, and so are crinkled organdie, eyelet embroidered fabrics, and cotton and linen laces.

If you like crisp white organdie collars on dark tailored sheers, you can save yourself much time and trouble by fixing them up now with snaps. In this way, at the first sign of wilting, they can be whisked off, into the tub, and back on your frock again before you could scarcely begin the tiresome process of basting them into place.

Detachable lingerie collars were never better, by the way. Paris' newest excitement is the "nursery-maid" collar. This is just a glorified Eton type of stiffly starched linen, dotted, checked, striped or plaid—especially attractive when taffeta ribbon slips underneath it and ties in a bow at the chin. Some of the newer blouses try this trick, too, the blouse itself remaining unstarched.

Flower touches will help to keep you looking cool all summer. It's new to wear a bright cluster at the throat of your tailored shirtwaist, and flowers are also charming at the point of a deep V neckline at any time of day. We like the crisp starched linen ones, although you will find many in chiffon.

June Brides May Go To Altar In Satin's 'Dignified Simplicity'

A supple white satin which drapes and falls with dignity still is a big favorite for Paris weddings. This one designed by Worth is fashioned on slender, simple lines with a great sweeping train. The veil of white tulle is held in place by a coronet of tiny orange blossoms with mother of pearl leaves. Double service wedding gowns have made their appearance on the marriage scene. They are designed to display all the grace and dignity of the regulation bridal gown and later may be used as evening dresses. The trains of these latter generally are not excessively long.

It's Time For Pretty Frocks More Feminine This Year

By BARBARA BELL.

It's time to step out of tailor-made girdles help to give this effect. Wear your belt wide if your waist is slim. Interesting things have happened to necklines. Their object is to flatter, and they do. There are the flower necklines, so-called because they cup the fabric about the neck in the manner of petals. The loveliest of these are in chiffon, held in place with a narrow ribbon. And then there are in chiffon, held in place with a narrow ribbon. And then there are the rippling cape collars—if you choose one of these, you don't need sleeves, which is a cooling thought to remember.

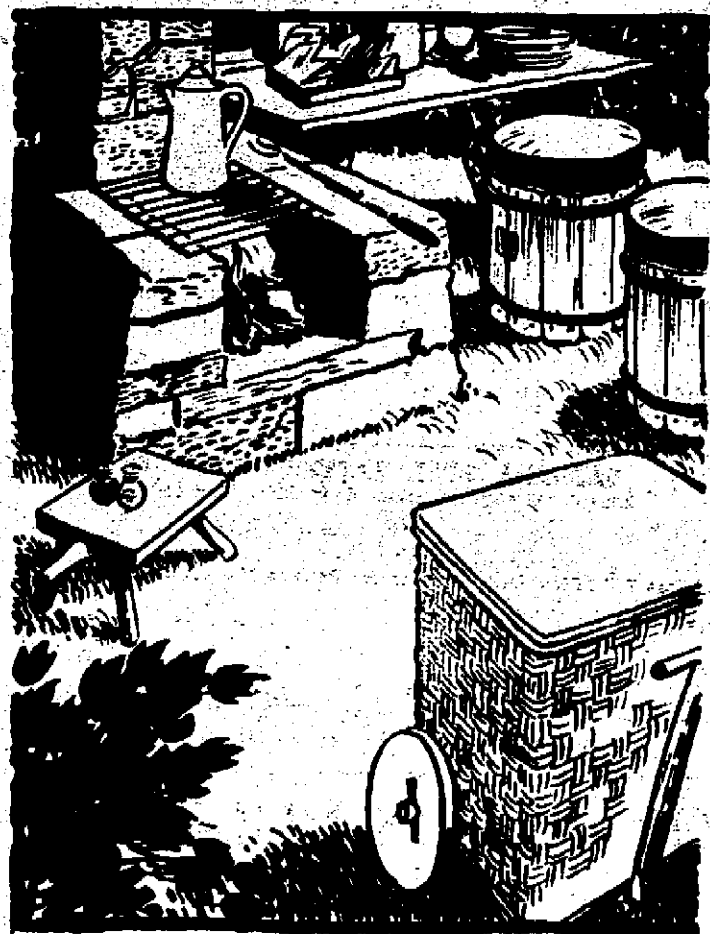

Those old reliables, printed sheers, are more important than ever, this season. First, because fashions have gone distinctly feminine, with softer silhouettes, fuller skirts, and lots of frilly interest at the top—the perfect type for chic transparencies. Second, because the new sheer fabrics offer wider variety, are better looking, and considerably more practical than in the past. And third, because the prints themselves have worlds of charm and novelty.

A word about this new femininity in fashion. It's "easy to wear." Softness is in, and skimpiness is out. No more of those skintight skirts; Paris likes them full and an inch or two on the shorter side. Often this is achieved by panels and inserted sections that swing fulness to the sides. Again, all fulness may be concentrated in front, gathered at the waist under a buckle and flared below, or confined in a cluster of tiny pleats. For fulness all around, there are gored skirts that bell slightly at the hem, and straight knife-pleated skirts that one French designer features as short as 15 inches from the ground.

Waistlines continue at normal, although you will hear some talk of a lowered line, and some wide crushed

Old Keg Tables and Rustic Lamps Give Novel Charm to Rural Cabin

Woven bark makes the pushcart built like a hamper.

By MARGERY TAYLOR

(Copyright, 1935, by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman)

When summer comes, why not bring back "rustic" memories with cottage furniture made of hickory logs and antiquated pine?

Pine walls, homespun cotton draperies, Indian blankets and fur rugs—with crude old furniture—and you have a livable mountain home.

There is a table and chair set made of old wooden kegs—a round pine top on a large keg for the table and the smaller kegs have spring-filled seat cushions.

A sideboard like a butcher's table, with a single deep drawer and a rack for cups and pitchers—it gives you a chuckle when you see it, but you soon admire it for its usefulness. There's a low stool like a griddle, with a ring in the handle; and other stools of slim hickory sticks, laced with rope.

There's something about a long trestle table which inspires the hearty country appetite—"new old" tables come with pine tops and extra rope supports. Sawbuck tables, large or small, are attractive. For the garden, there is a cheerfully helpful little table with an old hickory case stuck through the top which makes it easy to carry and set anywhere.

Rustic lamps! A floor lamp is a dairymaid's churn transformed, with a plain parchment shade. A table lamp is a wooden scuttle, handle and all. Another cheerful floor lamp has a shade hanging from a propped hickory post, like a cross-roads sign.

A Window Box Of All-American Flowers

Growing your specialties in a window box is a good idea. Try the All-American winners for this purpose.

A window box in which all the flowers had been winners in the All-American trials would be interesting as well as decorative, would it not? Such a box can easily be grown.

In the 1935 list of winners are several subjects suitable for window box planting. Petunia Martha Washington, nasturtiums Scarlet Glean and Glorious Glean hybrids, dianthus laciniatus splendens, and the annual aconites Blue Bird, would grow satisfactorily in window boxes. The dianthus is an annual pink, of brilliant crimson, and the aconites is a forget-me-not flower of indigo blue.

Among the 1935 winners which have had a continuous popularity since their selection last year the petunia Stark Gem would be excellent. It is a dwarf, compact and bushy variety of the giant series, standing from 6 to 8 inches in height. Another gold-medal winner was the marigold Fairy Bouquet, with its many-colored flowers and easy culture. It blooms quickly and in a trim and dainty flower growing to about 8 inches in color range is desired you will surely find it here, because it has a variety of brilliant tones. For a day sparkle, the veronica Spectrum Red would be good.

Build your window box of good strong material so that the constant moisture will not warp and destroy it. A few holes in the bottom, covered with broken pieces of crockery, is good for drainage.

Annual Phlox Demand Space to Grow

Rich colors characterize the tiny florets of the phlox drummondii, a wild flower which was collected in Texas a hundred years ago and taken to Europe. Improved by European plant breeders, it was returned to us in a magnificent form with vivid colors and a healthy nature.

Phlox is a very easily grown annual, too often discounted in value in the garden by being forced to grow in too crowded quarters so that it cannot develop its full possibilities of bloom. Given 6 inches square in which to grow, it will make a beautiful little bush.

There are two distinct types, the grandiflora, large flowering and making about a foot in height, and the compacta or dwarf types of about 8 inches. The latter are finest for edgings and bedding, as they are much freer of bloom. The grandiflora has much the finest individual flower and cluster but it does not produce them so lavishly. This larger section has beautiful colorings and markings and a bed of it belongs in any good planting of annuals relying on the dwarf sorts for longer and continuous masses of color.

While the annual phloxes are easily raised from seeds, the perennials are best obtained as plants. The tall perennial sorts, the glory of the garden in midsummer, may be raised from seed, but only a few of them will equal the fine named varieties. The selected types of seedlings, however, make fine garden material to be used in quantity.

The native hardy phlox, divaricata, often called wild sweet william, is easily raised from seed, providing you can catch the seed, the phlox scribe having a habit of shooting their seed broadcast when it ripens so that it is a difficult matter to collect it.

Make sowings of phlox drummondii at frequent intervals for a succession of bloom, as its season of bloom is short. A reserve row of it in the vegetable garden will give fine stems for bouquets. The grandiflora type is the kind to grow for cutting, as it makes good stems. The dwarf sorts do not make enough stem for cutting. Phlox are best sown where they are to grow and later thinned. They can be transplanted, but re-establish slowly.

To Prevent Curved Glass

When making jelly and it is all in readiness to be poured into the glass, put the glasses in a pan of hot water to keep them from cracking. The pan should be a shallow one and the water should be sufficient to cover the lower third of the glass.

VINES AND FLOWERS

NEED UGLY SPOTS

Hiding ugly walls and buildings which would normally detract from the summer landscape picture is easy to accomplish with some of the quick-growing annual flowers and vines.

The morning glory is excellent for this purpose. It will grow with surprising speed, and often reaches a height of over 20 feet in a single season. The old-fashioned clematis beans and sunflowers are good screens; they grow to great heights in a short time. The wild cucumber, the trumpet vine and the old-fashioned runner are good vines, and the cardinal climber, with its fine texture, makes a handsome sight.

Cooking Aids

Cheese added to white sauce increases nutritive value.

Alternate slices of lemon and orange on small glass plates and serve with hot or ice tea. Clives can be inserted in each slice. Canned ginger is frequently served with tea.

Sprinkle lemon juice over fish salad just before served. This greatly improves the flavor. Using 2 table-spoons lemon juice for each quart salad.

Leftover egg yolks can be used for cakes or cookies, salad dressing, baked or steamed puddings, or mixed with milk and scrambled.

LET THE CHILDREN HAVE THEIR OWN HOME GARDEN

The dangers to which children are exposed when playing on the street are known to every anxious parent. If a portion of the home grounds is set aside for a children's playground and garden, and developed and planted with their needs and childish fancies in mind, the youngsters will need little encouragement to stay at home.

Let them grow their own garden. It need not take up much space, and it will prove an excellent incentive to eat the proper foods, having grown them themselves. The growing and study of flowers, as you know, is a delightful and enlightening occupation. Why not treat the children to an early dose of the culture and refinement of gardening which other influences might overshadow in later life.

"OLD" FORMAL CAPE MAY BE USED AS INVALED JACKET

There is a way of using those sketchy little capes and jackets which have accompanied so many evening gowns the last few seasons. After the frocks are discarded, they may be used as bed jackets.

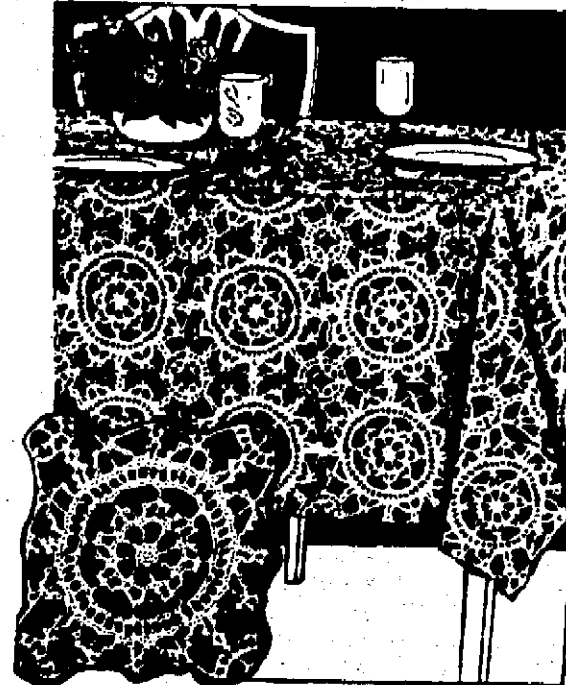

There is just enough warmth in them to keep one from feeling "coolish" when the sympathetic friend calls. It will be surprising how charming the "invalid" will appear in one of them. They also make an ideal wrap if, on ugly mornings, you feel the need of breakfast in bed.

Choosing Window Shades

Window shades can be chosen by taking them down, stretching them out on a flat surface, dusting them thoroughly and then wiping them with a damp sponge cloth. After this clean with damp cloth without soap and then dry very carefully.

MODES of the moment

Summer hat styles say "down in front." Diana Merwin

Two of the most outstanding ribbon stitched round and round shapes in hat this season show many ways of wearing it that suits most any type of face—it is youthful turned up in Breton fashion—laundry when thrust up at one side and sports when snapped down at front. A delightful hat to pack away in a suitcase—for it comes out looking like new.

Below at left is a modish hat of paper panama with front brim turned down. The very interesting crown treatment shows finely worked detail of multi-colored streaks in needle stitch with a building effect of the straw. The band sticks out the tubular red color of the crown and finishes in a colorful bow at front.

Dramatic Greeting for New Homesteaders

Palmer, Alaska, May 11 (AP).—Men, women and children of 67 Minnesota farm families, given a "new chance" by Uncle Sam, awoke on a chilly morning today in their promised land.

The night was cool—for it's still early spring in this fertile Matanuska valley. Temporary tent homes their first night in was not a restful one for many of them.

Bright and early this morning, however, they were up, walking about, getting a better view of the valley and the "boom town" being built for them. Among them was Herman Schlittberger, or Mora, Minn. "It looks like a fine farming district," he said, comparing the verdant country with the drought-swept middle west the colonists left a few weeks ago.

"I am not going to try to make good; I am going to make good. I'm used to hard work. I've expected lots of it, and here I am, ready for it."

"We're going ahead with smiles on our faces," his wife added. "We'll make the best of everything and there's doubtless a good comfortable future ahead."

The arrival of the colonists last night, after their 150-mile train trip north from Seward at Anchorage, 45 miles south of here, was a dramatic scene. The children shouted. Some of the older folks cheered. Some had tears in their eyes.

Several mothers, with babies in their arms, were very serious as they got off the train.

Dinner was ready for them at the big commissary which has housed the 500 CCC workers here for the last week, little time was lost assigning the families to their temporary homes and in unpacking baggage and getting settled for the night.

Rapids Run Upstream
It is true that the rapids in the St. John river in Canada run upstream twice every 24 hours. The St. John river empties into the Bay of Fundy, which is noted for its remarkable tides. When the tide is coming in, the rapids are running upstream. In some years, in the spring, the tide has been known to have a daily variation in some parts of the bay of nearly 40 feet.

MELLON GRINS AT 'PROFIT' OFFER

Andrew Mellon heard his collection of paintings extolled by critics as hearings by an appeal board of the government's suit to collect $3,000,000 additional on his 1931 income tax were resumed at Washington, but the former secretary of the treasury (right) only grinned when offered a cool quarter of a million dollars' profit on one painting by Lord Dunsen (left), wealthy English art critic. Sues Young Lord

London society gasped as love letters allegedly written by young Lord Revelstoke to Angela Joyce (above), "Miss England" of 1933, were read during the latter's heart balm suit. "I feel you are driving me crazy" was one of the young nobleman's purported observations to Miss Joyce. (Associated Press Photo)

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Movie fans may find common ground with their favorite stars in their home-life idiosyncrasies, habits or fads.

If the fan does not like butter, he'll agree with Sylvia Sydney, who won't have it on her table. If he likes a midnight snack of salted camp tomatoes and raw onion sandwiches, so does Clark Gable. If he gets a kick out of washing and polishing his own car on a Saturday afternoon, there is Gary Cooper, who often can be found doing the same job for himself.

Baxter specializes in Spanish foods.

Hostesses who wonder what to do about statues, vases, and other art objects when guests crowd the living rooms can take a tip from Pauline Lord. She has those articles wired to the floor or to tables. It is a simple, embarrassing moment and cuts down on breakage—and think of the advantage in an earthquake!

Big Likes Radies

Max West's penchant for mirrors has found expression in the new decorative scheme of her apartment, where the walls, the ceiling, table tops and other miscellany are mirrored.

If the fan, on trips, collects souvenir-like penny postcards, menu cards, resort and hotel folders, odd bits of wood or shell—he can say, "Well, I'd just like Jean Harlow in that."

George Raft has a radio in his bedroom, while Bing Crosby is one of those radio-in-every-room fans.

Richard Dix, easily approachable in person, keeps his home telephone numbers dark secret even from his studio. You call him through his secretary, Lionel Barrymore, starting a production, assigns some one member of his company to do any calling that's necessary. Charlie Ruggles, like Dix, is telephoned only through his valet—even by the casting of new films with secretaries' assistance.

PROGRESSIVE TEACHERS—Those who are not satisfied with the present system while "conventional" teachers are those who believe "anything is good enough for them; it is good enough for their fathers."

Today's closing session of the two-day convention was expected to attract nearly 2,500 delegates from Canada, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Dr. Rugg has a summer home near Benningville.

Goldfish Revert to Type
 Goldfish which were freely introduced into Madagascar years ago with the expectation of beautifying the native waterways, have reverted to the drab, gray-green livery of their ancestors. Soon after their arrival they flourished so well that they monopolized the lakes, ponds and rivers, to the extinction of the only edible freshwater fish which the islands originally contained.

Dog "Smuggler" Executed
 Outside of Lille, France, there is a dog cemetery filled with the mangled bodies of loyal little animals whose crime consisted of obedience to their masters, a gang of smugglers. These dogs had to be shot, sometimes as many as 50 a month, as they innocently tried to dash over the French-Belgian border, each with a 50-pound package of tobacco strapped to his back.  Kingston: "Private Worlds". Those of you who found the novel so absorbing won't be disappointed in the screen treatment of this unusual story. It has the same atmosphere, the same tenderness and the same humanity that the book offered. Without question, this will be one of the most discussed pictures of the year, and Phyllis Hotel, the author, should be pleased with Walter Wanger's adaptation. Laid against the background of a hospital that houses cases of mental abnormality, the main characters, the doctors and nurses, work to free the warped minds of their patients from the "private worlds" they find themselves in. At The Theatres

Today

Broadway: "Black Fury". Paul Muni, who enacts realism for the cinema and who never pulls punches in a dramatic way, scores a triumph in his latest endeavor to portray life as it is lived by those who live and die by violence, oppression and poverty. The plot centers around a coal mining district where labor troubles are the main issue. The problem is tackled in an intelligent and understandable light in this play, and so well are the issues brought to the screen that the production is a credit to the motion picture industry in creating a play based on reality and present day issues. It is Mr. Muni's greatest performance in the role of a hard working coal miner who gets tangled up with the labor interests, in fact the entire play ranks well at the top of the year's best pictures. Directed by Michael Curtiz, the cast offers William Gargan, Mae Marsh, Karen Morley and Tully Marshall. Recommended to all adult audiences.

Orpheum: "Texas Terror" and "Gilded Lily". The first is a melodrama with John Wayne heading the players, a story of southwestern bad men wherein the hero thwarts them at every turn. "Gilded Lily" is the tale of a small time big city girl who is rocketed to fame through some well planned publicity. It has many laughs, some clever lines and a cast that includes Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray.

Kingston: "Stolen Harmony". A world famous band adds an ex-convict to its roster of players. While on tour, the band is kidnapped and action occurs each moment until the tangled affairs are straightened out. This show is grand entertainment, with music by Ben Bernie and his orchestra, some of the funniest gags one could ask for and a fine cast headed by George Raft and Grace Bradley. There are also several cleverly arranged dances and the direction of Alfred Werker is exceptional. Lloyd Nolan, a newcomer, almost runs away with the acting honors.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.
 Orpheum: "The Mystery Man". As can be imagined, this is a mystery story but it also has one of the nearest plots one could ask for. Two strange people, a man and a woman, register at a ritzy hotel despite the fact that they are broke and from this beginning grows one of the most baffling mysteries the screen has seen until it is cleared up by one of those drunken newspaper reporters always seen in the talks. Schwartzes Praise U.S. Mail Carrier Who Thwarted a Robbery

Harry Schwartz, the old gold dealer and second-hand clothing merchant of 70 North Front street, and his wife Ida, are two people who always will be glad to see a U. S. postman.

The reason is because one of Uncle Sam's mail carriers saved them one morning this week from being the victims of what circumstances denote as a possible robbery and maybe bodily harm.

It was about 9:30 o'clock, a half hour after the time the store usually opens, and two colored men walked in. Mrs. Schwartz was there to wait on them.

"Here's a watch we want to sell," said one of the negroes.

Mrs. Schwartz tested the article for its worth as old gold and informed the men that she did not wish to purchase it. The two were standing near the door.

At this point the postman with some letters for the Schwartzes tried to open the door. He couldn't. It was locked, securely held by a bolt.

Suspicious of this, with the two negroes inside, the mailman waited, near the door until Mrs. Schwartz opened it. The negroes went out as she took the mail, evidently figuring that it would not be well for them to attempt a robbery at the time.

Later the two returned with another negro and asked about purchasing a suit. This time, Irving, Mrs. Schwartz's son, was with her in the store with a pistol prominently displayed in his coat pocket. The men did not linger, but went their way after getting the price.

"It was only an air shot pistol," said Irving in talking to a friend after the incident, "but it did the trick, I think."

However, he and his parents credit the postman with foiling the plans of the negroes, who, they believe, meant to rob the place when they entered and bolted the door behind them.

The Schwartzes never use the bolt during the day but put it on at night as an extra precaution against burglars.

Get False Leads in Newburgh Bank Theft

Arrival of three United States Secret Service operators before noon Friday in Newburgh marked the latest angle in the blind-lead stick-up of the Broadway branch of the Highland National Bank, says the Newburgh News.

False leads galore have been offered. Police Chief Brown and his men, as well as to the State Police and other probing agencies. All have been traced and all have been proven worthless.

So far, says the News, not a single lead has been developed. Some of the angles developed, however, was the discovery of a licenseless auto, painted blue, near St. Andrew's, found to be one stolen from New York city some time ago. It may have been the getaway car used by the five holdup men who got away with $12,000 of the bank's money.

The News also records what it says is a fantastic tale by one of the men held up in the bank, he claiming he followed three of the holdup men on the Storm King highway at 10:30 a. m. Thursday. He reported to local police Friday.

Girl Scouts ULSTER COUNTY COUNCIL

As the date, May 25, for the annual Girl Scout rally draws near and following the winter season, all are looking forward eagerly toward the annual gathering of scouts and council members from all parts of Ulster county.

This year, as usual, the rally will be held at Camp Wendy, at Walkill. The scouts and their leaders are asked to lay aside other affairs for that day and come to Camp Wendy, prepared to add their experiences during the past year to those of their neighbors, to exchange ideas, to make plans for attending camp this summer, returning home with a finer appreciation of what Girl Scouting means.

At a recent meeting of leaders it was voted to omit the awarding of badges at the rally, but it is hoped that each troop can receive its awards before the rally, in its own town, where the families and friends of the Girl Scouts may see what the troop is doing. Individual and troop service stripes will be given at the rally, however.

The program for the rally will be: 11-12. Inspection of troops. 12-12:15. Lunch. Each girl brings her own lunch, also a cup for water. 1-1:45. Rest. 1:45-2:10. Camp talk and songs. 2-2:30. 30. Tabernacle. 3:30-3:45. Good night, including service stripes and flag lowering. Any girl who is interested in going to camp this summer (and it is suggested that all Girl Scouts should make an effort to spend some time at camp Wendy this vacation) should discuss it with her troop leader, who will be glad to give her all details concerning encampment periods, etc., and furnish her with a camp folder.

STANDINGS

(By The Associated Press.)

Although much has been said pro and con about the great Athletics' experiment of shifting Jimmie Fox, an outstanding first baseman, behind the plate to become a catcher of still uncertain value, when it comes down to cold figures the change apparently hasn't affected Jimmie's value to the team.

The latest batting records show Fox at the top of the American League in batting with an average of .403 and leading in home runs.

Fox practically belted the A's into security from the danger of a drop into the cellar yesterday when he led the way to a 7 to 4 victory over the Browns that gave them a full game working margin over St. Louis. In four trips to the plate he smacked a double and homer No. 8.

Vernon Wilshire, young south-paw hurler, proved an able assistant by limiting the Browns to seven hits and fanning five while Bob Johnson, runner-up in the batting race, connected for four straight singles.

Joe Sullivan, rookie left hander, who has aided considerably in Detroit's "bounce" up from the cellar, turned in his third straight triumph by checking Washington 8 to 4 and kept the sixth-place Tigers well ahead of the A's.

Completing the day's roundup for the portlanders, Rookie Vito Tamulis of the Yankees proved effective in the pinches and the New Yorkers ended a four-game losing streak with a 6 to 3 triumph over the league leading Indians.

A radical revised lineup, occasioned by Ben Chapman's return to action, started the Yanks off to a 4-0 lead off Oral Hildebrand in the first two innings. Chapman lasted less than two innings before his "Charley Horse" again became balky and he dropped out.

Chicago's White Sox, ousted from the lead Thursday, lost a chance to regain it when they took a second beating from Boston, 12 to 2.

Princeton Varsity Crew Favored Over Pennsylvania.

Princeton, N. J., May 11 (AP)—Two more of the east's fast-rising list of undefeated varsity crews meet today in the Childs Cup regatta on Lake Carnegie.

Princeton, victorious over the Penn A. C. and over Harvard and Massachusetts Tech in its previous starts, takes a slight favorite over undefeated Pennsylvania with Columbia's oft-beaten boatland apparently fast to finish third and last.

Penn sports the first big upset of the season last week on the Schuylkill at Philadelphia. Making their seasonal debut, the Quakers outwitted Yale's highly-touted varsity combination in the Blackwell Cup regatta.

All three schools likewise have entered crews in the Hightstown and Freshman races. But Columbia will be a non-starter in the junior varsity event. The regatta program opens at 8 o'clock (EST) with the varsity at 8:30 p. m.

Canzoneri Regains Title In Decisive Victory Over Ambers

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor
New York, May 11 (AP)—It's an old ring axiom that they never come back but black-haired Tony Canzoneri, the dapper little fellow who looks like a miniature Babe Ruth and packs TNT in his right hand, today is the exception to prove the rule.

For all practical purposes, Canzoneri's decisive victory over Lou Ambers last night in 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden returns him to the status of lightweight champion of the world, successor to Chicago's Barney Ross, who recently relinquished the title, and the first fighter in the history of the class to regain the crown. Tony lost the championship to Ross in 1933 after holding it for nearly three years.

It's official, so far as the New York State Athletic Commission is concerned and if there's a better lightweight in the ring, any where, he will have to prove it. The National Boxing Association can make it unanimous by formal edict and probably will do so.

Crowd of 17,483 Thrilled
In recapturing a title that has been held by some of the finest craftsmen in fighting annals, Canzoneri thrilled a crowd of 17,433 nearly packing the Garden.

Canzoneri felled the rugged, stout-hearted Ambers twice in the third round with vicious right-handers and again blew the "Hurricane" down in the 15th round with a long belt to the chin as Lew was hustling to get out of the way.

From start to finish, despite the rugged upstate boy's most courageous and aggressive efforts to turn the tide, Canzoneri had the situation under almost complete control. Tony outsmarted, outboxed and out-punched Lou so convincingly through the first ten rounds that the unanimous decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and the two judges was a foregone conclusion.

On this observer's score-card, Canzoneri captured nine rounds, with five going to Ambers and one even. Lou rallied briskly in the last four rounds but was abruptly halted when he failed to duck another dynamite-laden right, in the closing moments of the fight, and hit the floor, bouncing up without taking a count.

Ambers Down Twice in Third
The third round really decided the battle, besides furnishing the most exciting moments of the entire bout. After holding his own with the cagey, cool veteran in the first two rounds, Ambers suddenly was nailed with a short right hand, following a left hook, and went to the canvas with a resounding thud.

Too startled to consider the situation from a reclining position, Lou bounced up after a three-second count and ran smack into another heavy volley. He went down again but was up and flailing away after the timekeeper's gavel had struck twice. The bell saved Ambers from further damage.

Recovering rapidly in the interval between rounds, Ambers carried the fight to Canzoneri for the next two rounds, jabbing and hooking effectively with his left but he was obviously wondering when Tony's terrific right would connect again and his pace soon slackened.

Tony Wasted Few Punches

Tony, cool and calculating, wasted few punches and no motion. He forced Ambers to move in and generally either tied up the youngster or felled him with a sharp attack, first to the body and then to the head.

Keeping command at all times, Canzoneri rated himself perfectly and offset Ambers' youthful speed by his superb ring tactics. The 29-year-old veteran had plenty in reserve for the stretch and never was in serious danger.

He emerged with a painfully cut lip, caused by a glancing left by Ambers in the second round, but otherwise was unmarked. Tony scaled 133 pounds, two under the class limit, to Ambers' 133½.

Canzoneri regained the lightweight title in the same ring where he first won it, in 1930, with a one-round knockout victory over Al Singer.

SULLIVAN vs BAER

A Pictorial History of the Heavyweights

III. SULLIVAN VS. CORBETT—1892

Mighty John L. Sullivan went down to defeat, ending the reign of the first of the ring's slugging heroes, before the skill and technique of James J. Corbett, first exponent of scientific boxing, in 21 rounds September 7, 1892, at New Orleans. The rise of Corbett, a San Francisco bank clerk, marked the end of the bare knuckle days and beginning of the gloved battles of today. (Corbett's black-trunk fighter)

A despised challenger, Corbett electrified the boxing world by outclassing the aging, dissipated Sullivan, standing off the old champion's rushes with sharp left jabs, wearing him down until Sullivan collapsed as much from his own exhaustion as Corbett's punches in the 21st round.

The battle climaxed a three-night fighting festival in New Orleans. On successive nights before Corbett won his world championship, Jack McAuliffe, great lightweight ruler, knocked out Billy Meyer, the Strator Cyclone, in 15 rounds, and Jack Skelly flattened George Dixon, the "Little Chocolate," in eight.

Owner Confident Nellie Flag Will Defeat Omaha Today

Baltimore, May 11 (AP)—Over the oval where her mother raced to victory eleven years ago, Warren Wright's Nellie Flag, daughter of the famous Nellie Morse, today sought to avenge her defeat in the Kentucky Derby when she faced William Woodward's Omaha, victor at the Downs, and nine other three-year old thoroughbreds in the 45th running of the $25,000 Preakness at Pimlico.

Beaten but not disgraced when she finished fourth in the Derby, Nellie Flag came up to today's race with both her owner and trainer, Burt Williams, confident she would stop short of the parade of Woodward's big red horse to the championship of the division.

Her workouts this week have consisted of nothing more serious than short breezes but from the stable came the word she was ready to accept the issue over the one and three-sixteenth mile jaunt.

Omaha Rated Favorite

The glory that was hers prior to the running of the Derby went to Omaha, however, for it was the son of Gallant Fox that was made the 6 to 5 pre-race choice to duplicate the 1930 triumph of his gallant sire. Omaha was so well fancied by the advance delegations of the expected crowd of thirty-five to forty-five thousand that he was expected to answer the call to boots and saddles at seven money or less. Post time was 5:45 p. m. (eastern standard time).

Although lacking some of the glamour that attended the running of the Derby, the Preakness proved a real horse race with three other horses, which had nudged in their faces at the Downs by Omaha, opposing the Derby winner. Like Nellie Flag, E. R. Bradley's Borzoi, Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Commonwealth and Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Psychic Bid were left far behind as Omaha roared through the stretch but each owner was confident that there would be a different story today.

Of the six horses yet to clash with Omaha only Walter M. Jefford's Fireborn, like the Woodward colt a mediocre performer as a juvenile, was given a chance to be in front at the end of the journey.

Matt Dalger, secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club, predicted one of the largest crowds in the history of the race. To exceed that mark would mean more than 37,000, as that many fans packed the rambling stands and quiet old clubhouse to see Man O' War thunder to victory in 1930.

MUCH REPORTING AS EAST KINGSTON DEFEATS OLD RIVALS

Flatbush and East Kingston grade schools, old time baseball rivals, clashed at Brigham's Yards Friday.

but contrary to the procedure for a number of years past East Kingston did the lion's share of the clashing and gave their old rivals a good trouncing. The final score was 21 to 11 in favor of East Kingston.

Several hundred spectators witnessed the game and cheered their favorites. It looked like the same old thing at the start, with Flatbush making four runs, but they couldn't keep up the pace although they used three pitchers in the attempt. Joe Naggy pitched for East Kingston and did good work, although his start wasn't so good. George Kenny of the Kingston High School battery outpitched the game.

Four B's Likely To Carry French Davis Cup Hopes

Paris (AP)—The silvery Davis cup that France guarded so jealously during the reign of La Costa Cochet, Borotra and Brugnon, now seems only a dim dream to French tennis fans, but France nevertheless hopes to put up a good fight this year on the long road back.

Borzotra, Brugnon, Christian Bousquet and Marcel Bernard have been working hard in recent weeks on the Riviera and in Italy, but only the old reliable Borotra and Brugnon have particularly distinguished themselves; and they fell before the canny Jack Crawford and Impetuous Vivian McGrath in Rome.

Bousquet has been defeated several times in the singles while Bernard has been confined to himself mostly to club tournaments. Andre Merlin, whose dash made him almost a tennis god in France overnight in 1933, seems pretty well out of the picture. His health has been poor but his friends still insist that he will make a comeback.

But the real test for France's cup candidates will come in the International championships at Roland Garros May 19-June 2. It is likely that this year's team will be chosen on the basis of this tournament.

There is little doubt that Bousquet will again play in the singles and Borotra and Brugnon in the doubles with the fourth man to be chosen. France's first Davis cup match will be at Roland Garros beginning June 8, when the Frenchmen will face New Zealand or Australia.

Australia is the big threat to the cup this year, in the opinion of Brugnon. Asked if Australia had a good chance to capture the cup from England, Brugnon replied: "Certainly, above all in the English do not find a good solid combination since if Perry doesn't win his two singles matches the British situation will be in danger. Australia thus has a good chance with Crawford, McGrath and Co."

An Open Letter to the Public

On Tuesday, May 7, the United States Senate adopted the so-called Patman bonus bill, thereby adding the approval of this body to the payment of this long overdue obligation to America's World War veterans.

Every person who reads his newspapers is more or less familiar with the basic principles of the so-called soldiers' bonus, which is rightfully known as World War Veterans Adjusted Compensation. This law was enacted back in 1924, when Congress voted to adjust the pay of the World War veteran with that of the lowest paid war worker during the World War. This compensation was given to the World War veteran in the form of a 20-year certificate and due to mature in 1945.

In 1931, Congress partially recognized the injustice to this delay, especially after all other World War veterans of the federal government were paid in cash and paid immediately following the Armistice. As a result, Congress voted to increase the loan value of these certificates and in 1931 World War veterans were permitted to borrow 50 per cent of the amount due. Unfortunately, however, the government imposed a penalty upon these loans in the form of compound interest. Assuming that the value of the average certificate is fixed at $1,000, the veteran who borrowed 50 per cent should have a balance due him of approximately $500. If he is forced to wait until 1945, the compound interest charged by the federal government will reduce that $500 to approximately $68.

If the federal government will pay this obligation to World War veterans immediately, the sum of approximately $2,200,000,000 in cash will be divided among more than 3,000,000 veterans. Through these 3,000,000 veterans, this money will be spent to provide necessities for more than 12,000,000 men, women and children. It is the only appropriation—and the only appropriation—that this government can make at the present time and be absolutely certain that every penny goes direct-

Many Singers Give Beautiful Concert

Thanks to the musical fervor, generosity and local pride of the men of the Mendelssohn Club, who sponsored the Hudson Valley Glee Clubs' Concert given on Friday evening, and to Alderman Zucca and his committee associated from our Common Council, in making the Municipal Auditorium possible, hundreds of people from Kingston and neighboring cities were privileged to listen to one of the finest concerts ever given in Kingston, by about 400 men and two very real artists.

The day in Music Week for Kingston began in the early afternoon when the guest singers with their wives and friends and the artists began arriving for the afternoon rehearsal.

From the many guests came words of warm praise for the Mendelssohn Club's attention to every smallest detail for their comfort and the making as fine as possible the evening of music.

Under the general chairmanship of Arthur C. Connelly of the Mendelssohn Club, publicity which brought out the immense audience had been taken care of by Publicity Chairman Barnard Joy and his committee. Everett Schutt and his committee took care of all contacts with the out of town clubs. Harold Brigham secured the artists. Henry D. Darrow and committee secured the auditorium and provided for the stage to accommodate such a large number of singers, piano, conductor and soloists platform. Charles R. O'Connor was the chairman of the successful ticket committee. C. K. Loughran and committee had charge of the programs. The Rev. C. E. Brown was the chairman of the reception committee which had arranged for "courtesy" cars for visitors, an information booth for their accommodation and for the restriction of parking space about the auditorium for the guests from out of town. Henry E. Weber and his committee saw to the entertainment of the guests, providing an afternoon of bridge for the ladies at the American Legion building or for sightseeing about our old, historic city.

After the rehearsal, the out-of-town guests were entertained at dinner at the Y. M. C. A., by the Mendelssohn Club, where the sociability was as greatly enjoyed as the dinner, which was presided over by the president of the club, Vernon Miller. Mayor Heiselman, officially and unofficially extended the welcome of the city to the guests, among whom were William P. Benz, composer of the "Salutation," sung at the opening of the concert, and Clayton W. Olds, former Kingstonian and president of the Associated Glee Clubs of America, to which the Hudson Valley Glee Clubs belong. There was much informal singing and apparently "a good time was had by all."

The spirit of good fellowship created by such an occasion adds appreciably to the ensemble and harmonious work of the singers and their conductors and deepens the musical life of all of the communities touched musically through their members in the Hudson Valley Glee Clubs. So many singing men are bound to make finer home communities. After the concert dancing was enjoyed to the artistic dance music of Paul Zucca's orchestra.

Long before the hour set for the concert, the audience began to arrive, and by the time of the arrival of the men upon the stage, the auditorium was practically filled with an exceedingly appreciative audience, whose attention was attracted to the large and handsome "Associated Glee Clubs of America" banner hung on the side wall of the Auditorium near the stage.

The clubs participating were the Amphion Glee Club of Newburgh; Apollo Club of Middletown; Apollo Club of Stamford, Conn.; Euterpe Club of Poughkeepsie; Mendelssohn Club of Kingston; Orpheus Glee Club of Poughkeepsie; Saugerties Glee Club of Saugerties; Schubert Club of Fort Jervis; Schubert Club of Schoenestady and Troy Vocal Society of Troy.

The chorus composed of these clubs was assisted by Miss Mary Hopple, contralto, and Charles Gilbert Spross, pianist.

It was an imposing sight to see the entire assemblage of men grouped on the stage. They were accompanied at the piano by Samuel D. Scudder the Mendelssohn Club's appreciated accompanist.

The program itself was an admirable one throughout, leading it was possible only from a group of male voices, wherein lies the very foundation of music itself.

Andrew J. Baird, conductor of the Apollo Glee Club of Middletown, the Orpheus Club of Middletown, and the Schubert Club of Fort Jervis, was the conductor whose privilege it was to open the concert. Each conductor led the men in the singing of three songs.

Mr. Baird was given a very hearty welcome by the audience and the "Creative's Hymn," by Beethoven, was a very effective first number, always the most difficult number for so large a group to sing. At once there was satisfaction in the ensemble, the totality was exceptionally good, and the unusually large number of leaders made for a balance of parts not often enjoyed. In the mezzo forte passages the dictum was clear from the very first.

Again the chorus sang very well indeed, under Conductor Baird, "Gala Hymn," by Dvorak, arranged by Fisher, a song loved alike by musicians and music lovers.

Mr. Baird's last number, "The Lord Chord," by Sullivan, arranged by Brewer, is always a favorite with concert audiences and was given prolonged applause.

Among concert goers in the audience and on the part of the men, hopes had run high as to the possibility of having a real overture sung by the artist of the evening. These hopes were more than fulfilled. Miss Hopple, with a sterner, character personality has a very real contralto voice with all the richness of some coloring of such a voice, throughout the wide range. Her tones were pure, lovely and very artistically produced. But she was not her technical achievement, never conspicuous but the finished vehicle of her songs, the lucidness of her intonation and the perfection of her interpretation all made her one of the most delightful contralto soloists heard here in many years. Surely this young artist has a rare concert future before her.

Her first number, "Recitative and Aria, 'O Mio Fernando,' from 'La Favorita' by Donizetti, with Charles Gilbert Spross at the piano, put her entirely in rapport with her audience which insisted upon an encore number. No wonder with such loveliness of tone. She sang a charming little German song, "Eine Kleine Melodie."

Roland E. Heermance, conductor of the Catskill Glee Club, was the second conductor who was given a warm welcome. Each added song that the chorus sang grew in resonance and closeness of ensemble. "John Peel," by Mark Andrews, a gay hunting song, was the first song sung under Mr. Heermance's conducting. This was followed by that always lovely song, "Songs My Mother Taught Me," by Dvorak, arranged by Smith, and the men sang it as though they loved it, with tenderness.

The third song was "On the Road to Mandalay," by Spenser-Chaffin. The tone quality was increasingly fine and the men sang this favorite with a swinging rhythm, which was heartily applauded.

When Charles Gilbert Spross appeared, and before the audience could see him, there was vociferous applause and cheering by the chorus, taken up by the audience, so that Mr. Spross had to wait a minute before he could begin to play. Mr. Spross played first two of his own finest piano compositions, "Frelude in B Minor" and "Improvisation in D Flat." Only a few of our greatest piano artists bring from the heart of that mechanical instrument the piano, such depth and beauty of tone as does Mr. Spross. He is an artist whose music gives that rare satisfaction to the listening musician that we call "art." His third number was a Strauss-Grandel, "Waltz," and Mr. Spross always gives a masterly presentation of the concert. This was a particularly brilliant number. The ardent applause finally persuaded him to play the "Left Hand Etude," which is such a favorite with his friends, and was asked for.

An ovation met Mr. Tidmarsh, the conductor of the host club and the Euterpe Club. Poughkeepsie; the Schoenestady and the Troy Clubs, by whom he is greatly loved and admired. That exultant song, "Laudamus," by Owen-Protheroe, was his first number, and Mr. Tidmarsh led his men with exuberant joy, the tenor part being particularly fine.

The faintest song of the evening, which lost none of that faintness because sung by such a large group of men, was the lovely "Where'er You Walk," by Handel, arranged by Spross. The tonal effect was lovely and it was given a very romantic rendition.

With sharpness of attack and release and an abandon that the singers had gained confidence enough in themselves and each other to dare, the chorus next sang Coleridge-Taylor's "Viking Song," and sang it splendidly, the applause at its close being prolonged.

Growing applause welcomed and greeted Miss Hopple on her return to the stage. She first sang a song lovely in thought and music, composed for her and quite like her, "Little Cares," by Herwin. Every tone was lovely and she thought she sang into the song made it very beautiful. She gave to the "Nightingale and the Rose," by Rimsky-Korsakoff, an ideal interpretation. Something deeper than thrills gripped the hearts of her hearers when she sang "My Johann," by Grieg. The applause in front of her and behind her was so great that Miss Hopple, asking to be excused by her audience, turned and repeated part of the song for the chorus which called forth most appreciative applause. There was grandeur in La Forge's song, "Into the Light," as sung by Miss Hopple and her hearers would not let her go. She returned to sing fascinatingly, "Cuckoo," by Lehman. In answer to the continuing applause, Charles Gilbert Spross sang "Morning and Evening." Miss Hopple sang exquisitely. She was accompanied in all of her singing by Mr. Spross.

The concert came to a perfect ending with the group of songs conducted by Robert Williams, conductor of the Apollo Club of Newburgh and the Saugerties Glee Club, who also was given an ovation.

With beautiful richness of tone that came from the hearts as well as the throats of the singers there rolled up a full volume of music to softly recede as Burleigh's "Deep River," was sung a capella and with a compelling sense of the solemn intent of the music so full of haunting beauty. At its close, an awed silence held the audience in its grip and then there was a great burst of applause.

The singers themselves seemed inspired as Mr. Williams led them and they carried on into that sweet, lovely song, "Shenandoah," (also sung a capella) arranged by Bartholomew, a wistful, tender beauty of music and theme of interpretation.

The Prayer of Thanksgiving, arranged by Kremer, came as a full benediction to the entire evening of the music. The swiftness of life dropped away, and "God in His Heaven," seemed real and life still.

Beautiful! Every heart held in the spell of the music echoes the prayer, sung in such sincerity and exaltation. "Thy name be ever praised! O Lord, make us free!" It was all beyond the praise of words or noise of applause, and again the awed silence, followed by long and great applause for the singers and the musician who so perfectly led them, a fitting finale to such a concert.

Spencers Furnished Girls, Colonial City Chevrolet, the Cars

Into the residential districts of Kingston last Thursday went 16 young "Fact Finders" on an intensive two-day survey of the broad preferences of this city. All were recruited from the Spencer Business School by Delmer Kelly, head of the school.

Headed by Miss Marjorie Cole of 72 Wall street, who acted as crew captain, this group of intelligent young business women, has combed the city in an effort to ascertain what Kingston housewives really prefer in the bread they buy. Freshness, texture, weight and many other factors have entered into the judging, which was concluded yesterday.

Automobiles for the survey were furnished through the courtesy of the Colonial City Chevrolet agency, which supplied cars for the girls especially decorated for the occasion. Several of the latest types of Chevrolets were "dressed up" with "fact finding" banners and formed a parade previous to the starting of the survey. Use of the cars provided a quick and efficient means of getting the girls to and from starting points.
